Putting Business Technology to Work

Let's be honest.

When you need to augment your staff with specialized IT expertise and manpower, you're facing a business-critical decision that you can't afford to get wrong.

► Does your current partner have commitment issues?

Hire one of the big guns for the comfort of its brand, and the senior talent who were there for the handshakes are soon replaced by rookies who struggle with the heavy lifting.

Trust your project to the small upstarts with the unbeatable estimate, and you quickly understand the caveat that you get what you pay for.

We suggest a simpler, safer and smarter approach for your next project:

Engage an experienced partner who knows your technology, understands your business objectives and challenges, and shares your vision of success.

Atidan has a proven client-centered, collaborative process that keeps your project on track for success.

Experienced project leadership from start to finish.

An Atidan senior executive is directly accountable for your project. So you get straight answers on costs and projections, and sound stewardship that keeps your project aligned to business objectives and compliance requirements.

A consistent, stable team through your entire project life-cycle.

Our experienced project leaders and developers specialize in quickly getting up to speed on your objectives and requirements. Your Atidan team members hit the ground running and are with you through deployment and knowledge transfer.

Customized solutions grounded in proven best practices.

We start with a comprehensive understanding of your project and build a customized solution using industry-leading technologies and practices.

Blue-sky promises are the leading cause of thunderstorms.

We provide realistic projections on costs and timing, and honest assessments of complexity and risk, using industry standard systems and Atidan's deep practical experience.

Big isn't the only size that matters.

Regardless of the scope of your project, you are a blue chip Atidan client. It's in our interest to help you succeed, grow, sing our praises and come back for more.
